Car in river: firefighters & divers respond

Fresh on the heels of an accident in which a West Sacramento woman drove her car into the river and drowned while phoning for help on March 13, dispatchers on the 911 system handled a more recent report of a car going into the Sacramento River.

The latest call came in at about 9:50 p.m. on March 30, from near South River Road and Burrows Road in southern West Sacramento.

"The witnesses stated they saw a four-door sedan floating down river with its headlights on," reported the West Sacramento Fire Department. They also reported seeing what looked like the lit-up screen of a cell phone inside the car.

That led to the strong suspicion that someone was still inside.

Firefighters responded in vehicles and a rescue boat searched for the vehicle, helped by the CHP, sheriff's department and DART (Drowning and Accident Rescue Team) divers. After an hour without finding the car, and then switched from "rescue" to "recovery" mode.

At about 2:30 a.m., hindered by strong currents and bad weather, the search was called off.

The car was later found and pulled from the river, empty. It turned out the car had been reported stolen.

Affordable housing project in Bridge District

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

There's been a city master plan in place for the "Bridge District" for over 20 years. But with the exception of Raley Field and the Ironworks subdivision, most of the work in the planned 188-acre riverfront district has thus far been at soil level – or below.

That's changing. The district's major developer, Fulcrum Properties, is gearing up, and last week's saw an official groundbreaking of an affordable housing project in the district. This may be the decade in which the Bridge District really grows up.

Officials from the nonprofit BRIDGE Housing organization joined West Sacramento officials and others to celebrate the groundbreaking of "The Rivermark" on Friday. The complex will offer 70 units of housing at 959 Bridge Street, near 5th Street. That's a spot near the river, between Raley Field and the U.S. 50 Pioneer Bridge.

Cynthia Parker, president and C.E.O. of BRIDGE Housing, promised that the new residents it brings will be "active members of the community... engaged with the rest of the city."

The project is designed to offer rents that are affordable to people up to the 35 percent level of median income in the area.

"If you're a single mom making $29,000, and you have two kids, living here would make a difference," said Parker. She added that by saving money on rent, the same mom could help stimulate the local economy:

"A mother who has a disposable income can shop at the store, and can make a difference in her kids' lives. Without that, it's just struggling."

Mayor Christopher Cabaldon told the assembled crowd at the groundbreaking that The Rivermark offers a valuable part of the planned "diversity" of the future Bridge District. The master plan also allows for market-rate housing, offices, restaurants and parks.

The project will offer a place for people such as a coffee-shop barrista or a preschool teacher to call home, said the mayor. Or a ballplayer:

"It's no accident we've located this in the Bridge District," said Cabaldon. "Many of the minor league players who play on the River Cats will live here during the season. They're not making four or five million dollars."

Rents for The Rivermark will range from $370 to $925 depending on income, household size and apartment size (according to Bridge Housing, which can be visited at www.bridgehousing.com).

The mayor and Eugene Lee of the California Housing and Community Development both gave credit to the state's taxpayers for helping to prep the old industrial area for its coming reuse. Those Bridge District challenges have included getting rid of rid of old rail spurs and replacing old infrastructure. City officials used to call the district the "Triangle," because it was bordered by the river to the east, the U.S. 50 freeway to the south, and the Tower Bridge approach to the northwest.

The Rivermark is about 20 months away from a grand opening, said Parker.

Behind her, earth moving machines were already underway. Despite an official ceremony on Friday involving local officials with shiny gold shovels, the ground had most definitely already been broken.

Behind the groundbreaking participants lies the U.S. 50 freeway across the Sacramento River. My son gets a ticket for being a 'smartass'

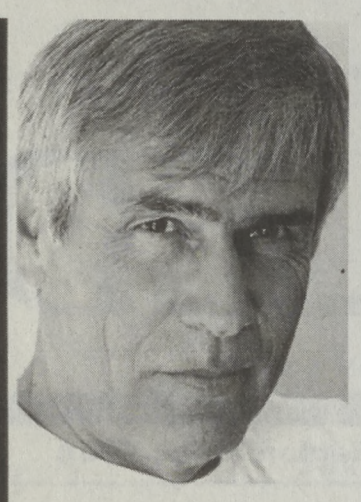
My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

I received a really interesting phone call from my oldest son the other day. He lives out in Bridgeway Islands in Southport and our conversation went a little something like this:

"Dad, you're not going to believe what just happened to me."

"What?" I asked with interest.

"Well, you know how you've been telling me to get out and exercise more so that I will be in better shape?"

"Yeah."

"Well, I was doing just that tonight after work, you know, riding around on my bike with Joey (his dog) when I suddenly started to lose my balance and needed both of my hands to keep from falling off. So I released Joey's leash for a few seconds and then, right at that almost same exact moment, some guy driving around in an animal control truck pulled up next to me and yelled, `Put that dog on a leash!" So I told him Joey was on a leash, and pointed out the one that was hanging off his neck. And then the guy says, 'No, I mean put the leash in your hand!' So I promptly bent over and picked up his leash, which was still connected to his harness. The officer then proceeded to drive away and I peddled off with Joey."

"So what's so interesting about that?" I asked.

"Well," continued my son, still obviously upset by the encounter, "about 30 minutes later, while I was returning back to my house on the same street, I heard a police siren go `boop boop' from behind me. So I turn around and it's the same officer and his female partner pulling up alongside of me. He gets out and says `Do you have your driver's license?' So I ask him why, and he says 'Because your dog was off his leash'. And I say, `But I'm holding his leash in my hand, just like you told me to do thirty minutes ago! See?' Then he asked me if Joey's registration and shots were current and I said 'yes.' Anyway, at this point he starts writing me out a ticket for Joey being off his leash 30 minutes earlier. So since I was getting pretty mad by then, I decided I better turn on the voice recorder on my phone and record the rest of our conversation."

"Let me get this straight," I said, "the animal control officer gave you a retroactive ticket for something you had done 30 minutes earlier even though you had complied with his warning?"

"Exactly! Now is that crazy or what?"

"But why would he do that?"

"He said it was because he had decided I had been a smartass the first time around."

"You have a recording of the officer saying he had come back to give you a ticket because of something you had said to him 30 minutes earlier?"

"I sure do. His exact words were that he was giving me a ticket `because of your smartass remarks' when he gave me the warning."

"So what had you said to this guy?"

"I don't think it was anything I said, but rather maybe my body language and the way I smiled at him and shook my head, making sure he knew I thought he should be out helping animals in need, not harassing me and Joey for no good reason."

"So how did this little encounter finally end?"

"He just gave me the ticket, smiled, and said `Have a nice day.' Don't you just hate it when people like that tell you to have a nice day when they know darn well they have just ruined your day for you?"

"Anyway," I said, "I don't think cops are supposed to be handing out 'retroactive smartass' tickets. If I had known you can do that, I would still be whipping out my citation book and giving you tickets for most of the time when you were growing up."

"This isn't funny, Dad. Tickets are really expensive nowadays and I'm going to file a formal complaint against this guy. I have his badge number and what he said on tape and I'm going to call his supervisor and tell him exactly what went down. And if his supervisor won't talk to me, I'm going to go to court and see if I can get the ticket dismissed that way. Guys like that shouldn't be allowed to drive around on their own little power trip and give people expensive tickets for no good reason."

'At this point he starts writing me out a ticket for Joey being off his leash 30 minutes earlier,' my son said. 'So since I was getting pretty mad by then, I decided I better turn on the voice recorder on my phone and record the rest of our conversation.'

"You know," I told my son, "there's this wonderful old saying that I have always loved that goes, `There are things in this life worth fighting to the death over, but they are very few and far between.'"

"So what are you saying? That I shouldn't contest the ticket?"

"No, only that you always need to careful about the battles you choose to fight in this life. But if this is one you want to take on, then go for it. And I bet if you call that officer's supervisor and calmly tell him or her your side of the story the ticket will just go away. I'm sure the Yolo County Animal Shelter people don't want their officers out there giving retroactive smartass tickets."

"You don't think I'm a smartass, do you, Dad?"

"Well," I admitted, "if you are, I'm afraid I know exactly where you got it from."

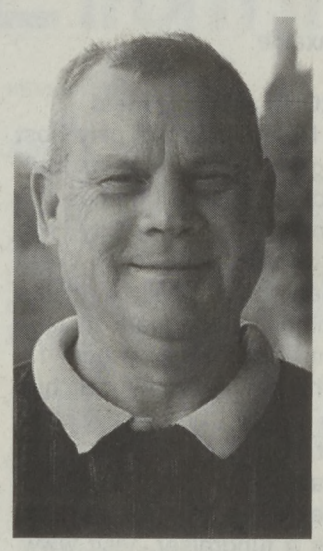
'THE HEART OF THE CITY': West Sac youth & sports happenings



BY DON SCHATZEL

To those of you that see me out and about, thanks for letting me know you read these articles! I appreciate it.

The latest youth sports news:

Stonegate Elementary is champion of the boys division in Washington Unified School District basketball.

Riverbank was the host site, with cheerleaders, banners, and dragon mascots from Westmore Oaks.

Southport squared off against Riverbank in the third place game and Southport was victorious, 44-33.

Southport raced off to a 21-12 lead and never looked back.

Nate Cornell and Kamron Johnston provided highlights for Southport and Shawn Shields had a great game for the hard-working River Otters.

The championship game featured the very tall Stonegate team, with an impenetrable 2-3 zone defense, against Westmore Oaks. In the end, the Stonegate height was too much and they won the championship 38-28.

Isiah Peraa, Eric Creer, Sahil Gil, Miguel Martinez Brisyn Saludares, Lorenzo Burks were all pointed out as having outstanding games and season for Stonegate.

Elijah Fields lead the Westmore Oaks charge!

Evidently, there are lots of terrific players on their way to River City High School next year.

Youth softball, Baseball, volleyball and swimming are now underway in town, It's the busiest sports season of the year.

Plans are being made now for next season's metro soccer program, for those interested. Alberto Terrico is the organizer to call 510-673-7871 to play metro – the 'best of the best' soccer!

Softball and soccer at River City are having historically successful seasons, as the wave of young players continues moving into high school. It's great fun to watch them play and represent West Sac.

The Attack, the Hitterz, Hooligans, Pumas, Saints, Dolphins, Tigers, and Arsenal youth sports teams in West Sacramento all continue their march to high school success.

One of the great opportunities provided to youth sports teams here is access to UC Davis and Sac State sports. The university games have very family-oriented pricing and great quality of play in any sport. I happened to see what seemed like the entire West Sacramento softball family at the recent Sac State game vs Cal in women's softball. Cal is number 5 in the country, and won the game 1-0 on a homerun. Great seats, great facility, actually the highest attendance in Sac State softball history. Both Sac State and UC Davis have great programs and are perfect for teaching young athletes through example.

For the horse fans: West Sacramento Trail Riders Association is hosting their annual dinner, raffle fundraiser on May 11. You can call me for tickets at 371-1513.

Hey, the sun is out finally, and this is the time of year to go outdoors.

Until next time.

Library book amnesty: 'read off your fines'

From Beth Gabor
County of Yolo

The Yolo County Library joins libraries in schools, campuses and communities nationwide in celebrating National Library Week, April 14-20, a time to highlight the value of libraries, librarians and library workers. As part of the celebration, each branch will conduct the annual "Read Off Your Fines" campaign, and a survey seeking community feedback on library programs and services will be posted on www.yolocountylibrary.org.

The Read Off Your Fines campaign targets children and young adult library card holders, age five to 18, who are able to read by themselves and who owe overdue fines. Youth will earn a $1.00 credit for each 15 minutes spent reading a book of their choice in the library. The goal of the campaign is to encourage youth who have been blocked from checking out library materials to once again be able to return and take advantage of the many resources available at the library.

"The Read Off Your Fines program is an opportunity for the library to encourage young people to return to the library and read for fun to eliminate their fines," said Yolo County Librarian Patty Wong in a press release. "This is your library; don't miss out on any of our many services."

In 2012, over 75,000 registered patrons visited the eight Yolo County Library branches, borrowed over 1,100,000 books, music, films and other materials, and accessed online resources via the library computers over 90,000 times.

During National Library Week, the Yolo County Library will be conducting a survey about the services provided, which can be found on www.yolocountylibrary.org, along with other general information.

To receive regular updates on Yolo County Library programs and services, "like" the library on Facebook at www.facebook.com/yolocountylibrary.org.

Buy a book, support literacy

To raise funds for the Yolo Reads literacy program, and as a kick-off to National Library Week, Barnes & Noble Booksellers is partnering with the Yolo County Library to host a Bookfair at their Arden Fair store Friday, April 12 through Sunday, April 14.

During the Bookfair, the Yolo County Library will be on display and sponsoring two events. A special library-themed story-time will be held at 11:00 a.m. on Saturday, April 13 in the Children's Department of the Barnes & Noble Arden Fair store, and a local authors panel discussion and signing will be held at 1:00 p.m. Additionally, throughout the weekend, materials on other Yolo County Library events and resources will be made available. More information about the Bookfair is available at all Yolo County Library branch locations (visit: www.yolocountylibrary.org for branch locations).

During the Bookfair, Barnes & Noble will contribute at least five percent of every sale made to the Yolo Reads literacy program when "Yolo Reads" is mentioned at checkout. One can also support the Yolo Reads literacy program by shopping Barnes & Noble online at: www.bn.com/bookfairs during National Library Week, April 12 through April 17, and including the Bookfair voucher ID# 11035896 when paying.

GUEST COMMENTARY:

Make a difference against child abuse

And have a little fun at the same time: fashion show and fun run benefit the fight

By Don Saylor, Chair, Yolo County Children's Alliance, and Yolo County Board of Supervisors, District 2

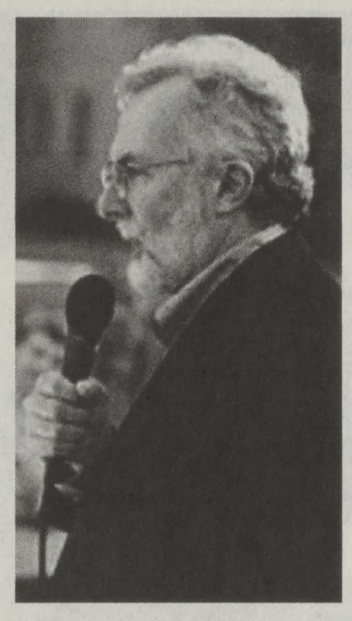
Child abuse is a national tragedy. An estimated 3 million children are the victims of substantiated abuse or neglect each year in the United States. In California during 2012, nearly 500,000 children were referred to Child Welfare Services for investigation of abuse and/or neglect.

In our own county, during fiscal year 11-12, the Department of Employment and Social Services, Child Welfare Services, received 1,398 reports of suspected child abuse and/or neglect. Resulting investigations led to 251 children in child-welfare supervised placements.

During the same time period, approximately 95 children each month continued living with their families while the families received ongoing support services and supervision through the Yolo County Child Welfare Services Family Maintenance Program. In addition, 96 children each month received Family Reunification services aimed at returning them to their homes of origin.

On the good news front, in Yolo County we have numerous public agencies and community organizations, parents, relatives, community volunteers, public policymakers and professionals who are collaborating to eliminate child abuse through the Yolo Family Strengthening Network.

The Yolo Family Strengthening Network offers parents the education, support, and skills they need to provide healthy, safe and nurturing homes for their children. Resource materials can be downloaded from www.yolokids.org/community. Our local program is based on the national Strengthening Families Program; an evidence-based family skills training program. Mistreatment of children decreases as parents learn more effective parenting skills, and the program has been proven to significantly reduce problem behaviors, delinquency, and alcohol and drug abuse in children. It also improves social competencies and school performance.



DON SAYLOR

Another program aimed at strengthening families, The Yolo Family Meals Campaign, invites the community at large to post photos on the Yolo County Children's Alliance web site of their family dinners, kid-friendly recipes and conversation topics that get your children talking at the table.

We hope hundreds of Yolo County residents will get involved in child abuse prevention.

Two ways that are fun include the Yolo County Children's Alliance and Child Abuse Prevention Council's 4th Annual Yolo County Celebrity Fashion Show on Friday, April 26th in West Sacramento and the annual Child Abuse Prevention Fun Run on April 28th in Davis. The moral complexities and struggle for survival in the immediate aftermath will keep you engaged ... although perhaps a bit queasy. Overall, when the movie reaches out to pull heartstrings, it hits the right notes.

"Promised Land" (R) -- Steve Butler (Matt Damon) is a representative for a natural gas corporation. It's his job to convince struggling farmers to sell their land for drilling purposes, making both the farmer and the drillers rich. However, this kind of drilling can have devastating effects on the land. In one small town, Steve encounters resistance and faces a conflict of his own conscience. This is a movie with an obvious message, but it takes the time to explore different perspectives without vilifying the individuals involved.

"Family Weekend" (R) -- Emily (Olesya Rulin) is a teenage girl who is serious about her competitive jump-rope regionals. Her wealthy, quirky parents are shamelessly disinterested in her life. To fix her family, Emily ties up her parents and teaches them lessons about appropriate conversation and how to show minimal support and attention for their children. It's like an extended sitcom episode. The R-rating might make you think it's a dark film, but it's very tame. It tries to bring in some emotional resolution, but nobody could possibly still care about it that far into the film.

Outside three years ago, leaving behind a cryptic message about conspiracies and uprisings. When her heartbroken husband joins her soon after, it leaves a jagged hole in the fabric of power.

Enter Juliette, the fierce young mechanic recruited to replace Sheriff Holston. Juliette has made her home in the deepest levels of the silo among the throbbing engines that keep it alive, and she has no interest in its upper floors, much less its exterior. But when she too stumbles into the enigma behind her predecessor's disappearance, it sparks a chain reaction that will propel her Outside and onto an unimaginable path that will change the fate of everyone in the silo ... and possibly even beyond.

It's difficult to describe too much about the plot of this gripping dystopian novel without hinting at conceptual and narrative surprises that are more satisfyingly encountered organically. This is certainly a layered world both literally and figuratively. But even in the most extreme of circumstances, the characters and their actions, good and bad, remain recognizably and intrinsically human.

"Wool" is a self-published sensation that became an ebook bestseller and is now available in print for the first time, a welcome expansion of the audience for this engaging and powerful story.

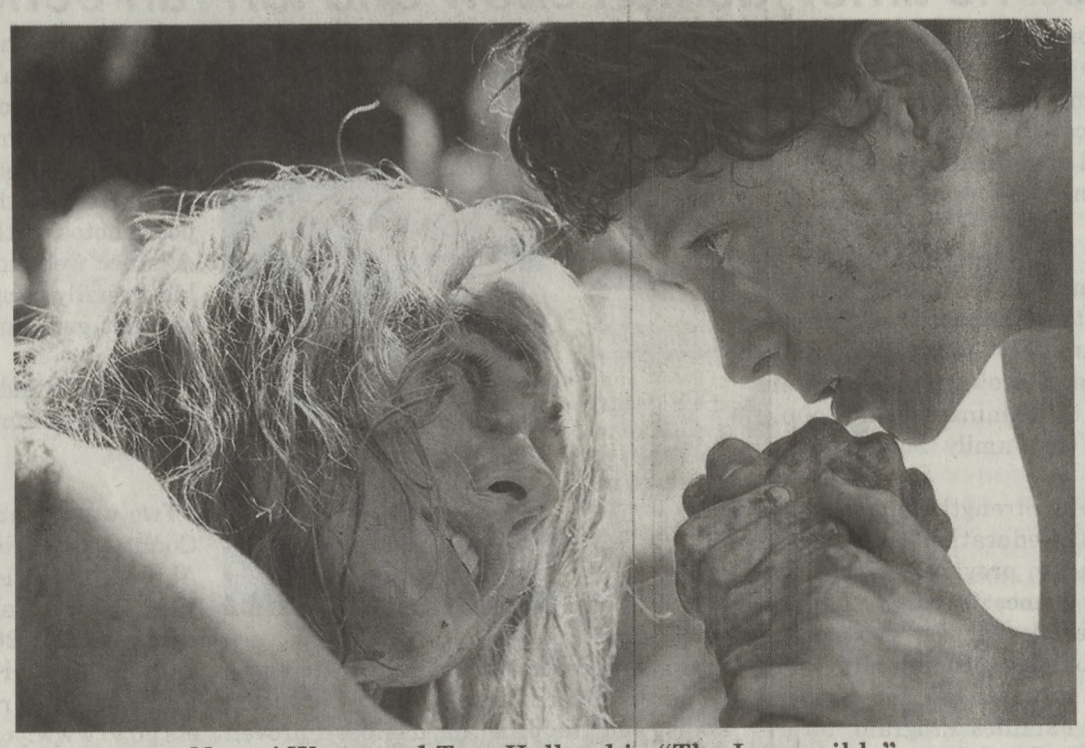
COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS

BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Gangster Squad" (R) -- Sean Penn plays Mickey Cohen, a maniacal villain with a fondness for executing his rivals in style. In 1949 Los Angeles, Cohen has enough corrupt cops and politicians in his pocket to keep his operation going strong. Josh Brolin and Ryan Gosling lead a team of daredevil policemen who fight back -- not as cops, but as a heavily armed hit squad against crime.

It's got panache. Scenes of LA nightclubs and gambling dens seem to glisten with pulpy nostalgia. Emma Stone does a fine job as the sultry lady torn between her gangster beau and the irresistible charms of Ryan Gosling dressed as a slick detective. Don't expect the classic noir-style complexity, "Gangster Squad" aims to be a hard-edged thriller in a nice suit.



Naomi Watts and Tom Holland in "The Impossible"

"The Impossible" (PG-13) -- In the 2004 tsunami that ravaged Southeast Asia, one family is torn apart and put through a harrowing journey to reunite. Henry and Maria Bennet (Ewan McGregor and Naomi Watts) are on vacation in Thailand with their three sons when a tidal wave smashes their resort and pulls the family in different directions. The aftermath is a tale of survival, and then heart-squeezing determination to find one another.

Based on a true story, the film has a balanced approach to the action and emotion. The scenes with the tidal wave are grueling.

Spring Into Earth Day

The seed for the creation of Earth Day was planted when Rachel Carson's bestseller "Silent Spring" was published in 1962. It made the need to protect the environment and public health part of the national conversation. Earth Day and the birth of the modern environmental movement were based on an idea from Wisconsin Sen. Gaylord Nelson. The devastating environmental damage of a massive oil spill in Santa Barbara, Calif., in 1969 had a profound impact him. He wanted to start a national political movement to protect the earth from the ravages of air and water pollution.

On April 22, 1970, some 20 million Americans took part in a national rally and organized protest against the deterioration of the environment, oil spills, polluting factories and power plants, raw sewage, toxic dumps, pesticides, freeways, the loss of wilderness and the extinction of wildlife. The first Earth Day led to the creation of the Environmental Protection Agency and the passage of the Clean Air, Clean Water and Endangered Species acts.

"It was a gamble," Gaylord recalled, "but it worked."

Today Earth Day is a worldwide movement reaching hundreds of millions of people. It uses social media to organize and inform people about current environmental issues such as recycling, global warming and clean energy. For example, A Billion Acts of Green launched an international initiative last year with "Avatar" director James Cameron to plant 1 million trees, and tripled its online base to more than 900,000 community members.

Celebrate Earth Day with my recipe for Spring Stew with Tomato Garlic Pistou. It's the perfect showcase for local, fresh and environmentally friendly vegetables.

SPRING STEW WITH TOMATO GARLIC PISTOU

Pistou is a French version of pesto without any pine nuts, almonds or walnuts. Adding the Tomato Garlic Pistou to the finished Spring Stew not only enhances the presentation of the soup, it also adds a burst of acid, brightening the flavors. Any extra pistou can be refrigerated or frozen. It's a healthy accompaniment for grilled or steamed fish and shellfish. Or use it as a base for a salad dressing by whisking it with a little more olive oil and balsamic, red wine or sherry vinegar.

2 tablespoons olive oil
2 cups yellow onions, finely diced
2 cups carrots, peeled, finely diced
1 red bell pepper, cut in 1-inch chunks
1 tablespoon kosher salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
3 quarts unsalted vegetable stock
1 cup green beans, fresh or frozen, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
2 cups asparagus, tips and tender parts, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
1 cup shelled fresh peas (about 1 1/2 pounds unshelled) or frozen peas
2 cups yellow squash, medium dice
3 ounce ditalini, tubettini or other small pasta
Tomato and Garlic Pistou (recipe below)
1/2 cup Parmesan cheese

1. Heat the oil in a 6-quart Dutch oven set over medium-low heat until oil is hot, but not smoking. Add in the onions and cook for a few minutes, stirring frequently until onions soften. Toss in the carrots, red bell pepper, salt and pepper. Turn up heat to medium and saute for about 5 minutes, stirring to prevent burning. Don't let the vegetables caramelize.

2. Add vegetable stock and bring to a boil. Turn down the heat and simmer the soup for a few minutes before adding green beans, asparagus, peas, squash and pasta. Simmer for an additional 15 minutes or so, until the pasta is cooked and the vegetables are tender. Serve soup with a large dollop of pistou (recipe below) and freshly grated Parmesan. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Pistou:
4 large cloves of garlic, smashed and peeled
1/2 cup tomato paste
30 fresh, large basil leaves, washed and patted dry
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil, plus 2 tablespoons for topping

Add garlic, tomato paste, basil leaves and Parmesan cheese to the bowl of your food processor. Pulse the mixture until it is a chunky paste. With the motor running, add the extra-virgin olive oil in a steady stream and process until it becomes creamy. Transfer pistou to a small container, and cover it with a thin layer of olive oil and an air-tight lid to keep the colors bright until ready to use. Makes 1 cup.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Elizabeth Cook be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250.
